She urged the Commission to find a pathway forward that includes keeping the Summit residency program open.

Jimmy Zuniga, Summit Preparatory Charter High School, spoke about his experience with the Summit residency program as an alumnus of Summit, a former cooperating teacher and a current school leader. He requested the Commission support Summit in providing what he stated to be a much needed and effective pathway to teaching.

She urged the Commission to approve Accreditation with Stipulations or Accreditation with Probationary Stipulations.

Doug Gephart, Association of California School Administrators, voiced concerns about the teachers in the cohort and suggested the Commission find a way to allow the teachers in the current cohort to proceed without penalty to earn their credentials while working with Summit to follow the appropriate procedures for approval of the residency program.

Mari Gray, California Association of Professors of Education Administration, encouraged the Commission to uphold the COA's accreditation decision regarding professional preparation for Summit Charter Schools.

Rigel Massaro, Public Advocates, stated a full policy discussion would be necessary both in front of the Commission and the Legislature to enable all LEAs, county offices, districts and charter schools to establish teacher preparation programs without formal partnership with a Commission-approved institution of higher education.

Commission Action

Commissioner Sloan moved to make the following findings on the six appellate claims:

1. The COA was not arbitrary and without legal basis in not permitting Summit to operate a residency program. There is no clear law that authorizes an LEA to operate a student teaching residency program without a relationship with an IHE.
2. The COA did not act contrary to the Handbook by imposing stipulations that the Summit intern program be closed, even though the Handbook indicates that a site review team may determine that a program be closed only where more than half of the standards are not met. The COA went beyond the authority that is clearly defined in the Handbook for the site review team, because the COA has such discretionary authority to do so.
3. The COA's interpretation of Precondition #11 and imposition of that precondition on Summit was contrary to the plain language of the precondition. The language indicates that intern programs designed to meet shortage must indicate such. However, Summit was not designed for this purpose. Furthermore, this requirement does not apply to programs, but rather, applies to districts that employ interns, pursuant to Education Code section 44225.7. The Commission directs the COA to modify this precondition to comply with statute.
4. The COA did not act contrary to the Handbook in reviewing a precondition at the January 31 hearing and in basing part of its decision on noncompliance with such precondition. Both the Accreditation Framework and the Accreditation Handbook clearly delineate that programs must adhere to preconditions at all times.
5. The COA did not act arbitrarily and without legal basis in determining that Summit intern candidates must pass CSET prior to admission to the intern program. This is clearly delineated in Education Code section 44453, subdivision (a).
6. The COA did not act unfairly in penalizing Summit in requiring interns to be employed as teachers of record, as this is clearly delineated in Education Code section 44325, subdivision (a).

Commissioner Sloan further moved that the Commission set aside the decision of the Committee on Accreditation regarding Summit Public Charter High School and assign Accreditation with Major Stipulations as Summit's accreditation status.

The Commission accredited Summit's preliminary teacher preparation program as a residency model with the following stipulations:

1. That Summit within six months either: a) contract with a regionally accredited Institution of Higher Education with a Commission-approved teacher preparation program. This means that there would be meaningful evaluation and feedback on how Summit is addressing the Commission's Preconditions, Common Standards, and Preliminary Single Subject Program Standards as part of the partnership; or b) within six months Summit submit a proposal to be accredited as an experimental residency program pursuant to Education Code section 44273 and compliant with the experimental program standards adopted by the Commission in March 2008.
2. Within twelve months a revisit be conducted to confirm that Summit is meeting all preconditions, common standards, and program standards for the preliminary teacher preparation program.

Commissioner Hinde seconded the motion. The motion carried without dissent.
