

Types of Educator Preparation Programs in California

November 2010

Overview of this Report

This agenda item provides information on the various types of educator preparation programs offered by California. This agenda item also provides information on the numbers of each type of credential program being offered throughout the state.

Staff Recommendation

This is an information item.

Background

At the COA's last meeting, the Committee requested information about the distribution of approved educator preparation programs being offered by institutions in the state. The Commission staff agreed to compile that information and to provide it at the November COA meeting. This agenda item responds to that request.

Types and Distribution of Educator Preparation Programs in California

Attached to this agenda item are three charts. The first chart (Appendix A) includes information about the three basic teaching credential types: Multiple Subject, Single Subject, and Education Specialist. This chart includes information, taken at a point in time, about which institutions offer which of the three types of basic teaching credentials. The second chart (Appendix B) includes information about internship programs including which institutions offer these programs. The third chart (Appendix C) includes information about the services credentials, and again, includes information about the distribution of these programs by institution. Also included is information on Designated Subjects programs (Appendix D), BTSA Induction programs (Appendix E), and Added Authorizations in Special Education (Appendix F).

Analysis

In reviewing the data available about the number and distribution of approved educator preparation programs, there are some obvious conclusions. For instance, Multiple and Single Subject programs are the most numerous and are, generally, available in every region of California. Likewise, Educator Preparation Programs: Mild Moderate and Moderate Severe are also fairly prevalent. However, staff intends to prepare a regional analysis of all educator preparation programs to discuss in more detail with the COA at the meeting the availability and lack of availability of some credential programs in some regions of the state. While the Commission has no authority to mandate which programs institutions choose to offer, it is important to understand the broader implications of lack of available programs to prepare educators on the services that are available to K-12 students in any particular region.

Inactive and Withdrawn Programs

Also included in this report is a chart (Appendix G) indicating the programs that have gone either "inactive" or have been withdrawn. While some conclusions may be reached, the Commission staff cautions against doing so at this point for two reasons. First, the inactive option is new, having been in place about two years. Second, the withdrawn option has been more aggressively encouraged by Commission staff because the 7 year cycle of accreditation requires accreditation activities for all programs during the 7 years of the cycle. As a result, it has been important to pay greater attention to “cleaning” up the Commission’s database with respect to which programs are actually providing services to students. Commission staff has spent a considerable amount of time determining which programs were actually operating in California and if not, trying to determine the intentions of institutions – whether it is a temporary hiatus, whether it is a program that has not been offered for a number of years and there is no plans to do so in the near future, or whether there are other circumstances. Better reflecting programs actually in operation continues to be a “work in progress” as institutions begin to understand and exercise these options, and as more institutions undergo accreditation activities in these first few years of the new accreditation system. Reviewing this same information in another year or two, after this initial clean up phase, would likely be more useful in identifying trends.

In summary, there are seven tables in this agenda item providing the following information:

Table	Information
A	Teacher Preparation: General and Special Education Programs
B	Teacher Preparation: Intern Programs
C	Educator Preparation Services Programs
D	Teacher Preparation: Designated Subjects and Specialist Programs
E	Teacher Preparation: BTSA Induction and Clear Credential Programs
F	Teacher Preparation: Added Authorization in Special Education Programs
G	Withdrawn and Inactive Teaching and Services Programs
